Services

African American Student Services

The African American Student Services program at UNM provides culturally relevant programs designed to assist primarily African American students in making a confident transition and successful adjustment to the University of New Mexico. African American Student Services understands that students often require a holistic approach to academic support. The program strives to provide an environment which is sensitive to the culture and history of African Americans and assist African American students in achieving their educational goals. African American Student Services is committed to recognizing the differences within the African American culture, appreciating other cultures, and promoting programs within the university and the surrounding community that provide a cross-cultural perspective. Our staff is available to support the personal, academic, educational, and social development of students. African American Student Services is not a duplicate of other services on the campus, but rather it concentrates on the special concerns that arise from the experience of being an African American on a predominantly white campus. All students, regardless of ethnicity, are encouraged to participate in our cultural and academic programming.

American Indian Student Services: AISS

American Indian Student Services (AISS) provides academic and cultural programming for American Indian students attending the University of New Mexico-Main Campus in an effort to ensure academic achievement and assist in the development of personal, cultural, and social success. AISS serves as a liaison for Native students attending local high schools and schools located on or near tribal reservations; tribal and community colleges; tribal governments; and tribal higher education programs and organizations that directly impact the recruitment and retention of American Indian students at the University of New Mexico. All students are welcome!

Sustainability Studies Program

The UNM Sustainability Studies Program began offering courses during the Fall 2007 semester. It was the brain child of Professor / Director Bruce Milne. His intent to create this program was to offer students a way to combine whatever their major is with a minor in sustainability. Once a student graduates with a minor in sustainability, they are able to utilize this knowledge and use it in their career choice and in their personal lives. The program attracts students from all colleges and disciplines across main and north campus.

FIND YOUR DATE

The screenshot shows a web-based calendar interface. At the top, there are navigation tabs for 'Home' and 'Services', and a user profile section with 'Your name', an email icon, and a 'logout' link. The main calendar area is set to 'Week' view, showing dates from Monday 6/15 to Friday 6/19. A time scale at the top right indicates '5 day' and '7 day' options, with the current range '06-14-2015 to 06-20-2015'. On the left, a calendar for June 2015 is visible, with the date '15' highlighted. Two workshop events are shown on the calendar grid, both titled 'Course: Workshop' and occurring on Tuesday 6/16. Each event has a 'Sign Up (25 out of 25 spots available)' button. Three red arrows point to these elements: one to the 'Week' tab, one to the '15' in the calendar, and one to the 'Sign Up' button of the second workshop.
